

Geographical Imaginations

This work provides a reading of geography as a discipline and a discourse, and attempts to situate that discourse within the fabric of contemporary social theory. Its focus is on understanding the ways in which social life is variously embedded in place, space and landscape. In the fulfillment of this objective, historical imagination, textual exegesis, philosophical scrutiny, sociological interpretation and geographical sensitivity are interwoven. In mapping human geography into contemporary social theory, the author addresses, re-interprets and questions key theoretical debates and issues - post-colonialism, structuration theory, feminism, deconstruction, postmodernism and post-structuralism - and explores the crucial connection between space, power and knowledge. Geographical Imaginations is both a critique of contemporary social theory and a fundamental contribution to the understanding of social life and its intrinsic spatiality.

My curiosity got the best of me the other day and I gave in by watching one of those "End of the World" conspiracies videos. This time around the date is set for July 29, 2016. So in three days the biblical prophecies will come true and we will be swallowed up by hell fire while the others who are "saved" will rejoice in the heavens.
