

A Sketch of the Life and Character of Charles Linsley, Read Before the Vermont Historical Society (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from A Sketch of the Life and Character of Charles Linsley, Read Before the Vermont Historical Society

The life of a lawyer, however eminent, if mainly devoted to the pursuit of his profession, affords but few materials for the manufacture of biography. His labors, unlike those of the statesman, or even the politician, are expended for the most part upon private and personal affairs, of but temporary consequence, and having no hold upon history. The attention which courts of justice usually attract is but transitory, and the excitement that sometimes attends them soon passes away. The contests of the forum are rapidly forgotten. Even their results are generally unimportant, except to the parties concerned. Nor has the advocate, like the successful author, the advantage of leaving his productions behind him, in permanent and accessible form. His best efforts perish with the occasion that produces them. The vigorous practical sense, the wit, the fancy, the eloquence even, that embalmed in the pages of literature might survive through many generations of the brotherhood of scholarship, are scattered by the wayside, never to be gathered up nor remembered.

My curiosity got the best of me the other day and I gave in by watching one of those "End of the World" conspiracies videos. This time around the date is set for July 29, 2016. So in three days the biblical prophecies will come true and we will be swallowed up by hell fire while the others who are "saved" will rejoice in the heavens.
