

The Road Home

It occurred to Eliza Thomas when she hit her forties that home might be someplace you made. A modest cabin in the woods of Vermont seemed like a good place to start. Thomass funny, heartwarming experiences transform the weekend cabin into a real home--a place where Thomas paints the floor the same color as her grandmothers beach house porch; where hordes of ladybugs come to visit one Indian summer; and the place her adopted baby daughter excitedly recognizes as they make their way through the woods in a snowstorm. In writing that is at once funny and poignant, Eliza Thomas welcomes us into the warm and cozy rooms of her first real home. A charming memoir . . . Thomas details the joys and problems of rural living.--Publishers Weekly; Pleasant to read, funny at times, candid and poignant at others . . . by the end of the book, Thomas accomplishes a remodeled future built by hand, and a sense of her life as a narrative leading home.--The New York Times Book Review; Another back-to-nature/independent woman story? Hardly. Which is what makes Thomass memoir, THE ROAD HOME, all the more enjoyable. . . . She conveys a very real, living definition of home.--The Boston Globe. A BOOK-OF-THE-MONTH CLUB and QUALITY PAPERBACK BOOK CLUB selection.

My curiosity got the best of me the other day and I gave in by watching one of those "End of the World" conspiracies videos. This time around the date is set for July 29, 2016. So in three days the biblical prophecies will come true and we will be swallowed up by hell fire while the others who are "saved" will rejoice in the heavens.
