

Collections of the Maine Historical Society, Vol. 2 (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from Collections of the Maine Historical Society, Vol. 2 In presenting to the public a second volume of the Collections of the Maine Historical Society, the committee desire to give greater publicity to the Brief Narration of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, and the Voyage of Christopher Levett, two prominent articles of the volume. They are both rare works and have a peculiar value among the historical materials of this State. An apology for this republication cannot be needed. No part of our country is so deeply interested as Maine, in the life and story of Gorges. It was he who engaged most early and earnestly in the colonization of our territory; obtained the first charter for it, and established the first regular government which it enjoyed. It is peculiarly proper that a narrative written by the founder of our State, in the earnestness and ardor of a man zealously devoted to the work of colonization, describing his efforts, his sacrifices, his disappointments and success, in those undertakings, should be preserved in the transactions of a society, which professes to search out and perpetuate the early attempts to colonize and cultivate our soil. The copy of the original edition of this work used in the present reprint, was kindly loaned for the purpose, from the Library of Harvard Collage, by President Everett. Levetts voyage is also entitled to a place in our Collections, for its particular application to our territory. It gives the first minute account we have of that part of our coast which lies between the Piscataqua and Pemaquid; and this is done in so simple and artless a manner, that it wins greatly on our confidence and regard.
