

Mae Weston: Acrobat, Boxer and Wrestler

Mae Weston was a Kansas native who became an acrobat in her mid teens, She followed her sister, Wilma Gordon, into the carnival. When she wasn't performing acrobatics Mae boxed and often fought men at carnival shows. She positioned herself to become a female wrestler when the sport became popular in the 1940s. In the 1950s Weston was among the luminaries in women's wrestling. She took on World Ladies Champion Mildred Burke in a number of matches.
