

The Unwinding Corner

This is the story of Shanne Gregg, a girl born and brought up in a changing Ireland, at the turn of the century and on to the First World War. Look over your shoulder...look over your shoulder and find your heart torn apart. She is the daughter of a country doctor and she nurses British soldiers in the Convalescent Home of Screebogue, but there have also been the wounded curlews of a nation, reaching for its destiny. They had come in the darkness of the night, tapping on the window for help at the doctors house and never turned away. Then there is Chandos . . . Gareth Chandos, a descendant of The Wild Geese from the Siege of Limerick, hundreds of years before. Perhaps he is looking both ways too, seeking for an end to the unwinding corner. Perhaps they find happiness together in each other, and maybe their problem is solved, but the straight road is still elusive. This story from the pen of Dr. Alice Dwyer-Joyce moves like a full tide. It cannot fail to hold the reader from the first page to the last.

My curiosity got the best of me the other day and I gave in by watching one of those "End of the World" conspiracies videos. This time around the date is set for July 29, 2016. So in three days the biblical prophecies will come true and we will be swallowed up by hell fire while the others who are "saved" will rejoice in the heavens.
